Pride & Tradition: Randolph Barton, Jr., Class of 1887

Randolph Barton was raised in Baltimore and prior to his enrolling in Johns Hopkins University was a student at the Carey School for Boys (Boys' Latin) in downtown Baltimore. His brothers Carlisle '03, David '09, and Alexander '10 all attended Boys' Latin.

Randolph was the oldest son of Major Randolph Barton, Sr. an officer in the Confederate Army. According to Margareta Barton Colt's author of the book Defend the Valley. A Shenandoah Family in the Civil War Randolph Barton, Sr. "served first in the Stonewall Brigade, from the First Battle of Manassas to Appomattox, with time out to recover from five wounds (he was struck twice by spent bullets). At Appomattox, Major Barton's group of three officers was hastily and rather randomly assigned by General John B. Gordon to surrender to General U. S. Grant's troops and he was one of several white-flag bearing parties all along the line that day. This party's flag was in reality a towel, and a piece of it is now in the museum at Appomattox." (Margareta Barton Colt is the great-granddaughter of Major Barton.)

After graduating from Johns Hopkins in 1891 Randolph Barton, Jr. enrolled in the University of Maryland Law School and two years later passed the Maryland Bar and became a practicing lawyer – following in his father's footsteps. He went to work for his father's firm Barton & Wilmer and practiced law the rest of his life. During his long and illustrious career he was an active trial lawyer in a great variety of cases.

In 1902 Randolph married Eleanor Morison in what The Baltimore Sun described as "one of the leading social events of that season."

Barton served as the counsel for the Baltimore Association of Commerce for decades, was a charter member of the Lawyers' Roundtable Organization in Baltimore, and served as the president of the city bar association for years. On appointment of Governor Albert Ritchie (also a former Carey School student) he served for several years as a member of the uniform law commissioners of the American Bar Association.

Randolph continued to practice law daily until just a few weeks prior to his death. In early August 1955 he became ill and died on August 28 at (ironically) The Union Memorial Hospital in Baltimore. He was 83 years old.

100 Years Ago

BL's Mace LeBrun '33 was born on June 8, 1913. Mace worked for Boys' Latin from 1940-1977 including eleven years (1961-1972) as head varsity lacrosse coach. Mace's Lakers won lacrosse titles in 1964 and 1966. His teams from 1962-1966 were a combined 44-4 against high school competition.

95 Years Ago

Boys' Latin School held its commencement exercises. Alumnus Alexander K. Barton '10 who had just returned from seven months in France serving in World War I with the Seventh Rainbow Division, made an informal address. Barton told the students of his experiences in France and brought with him many souvenirs of the battlefields. One of the most interesting features of his talk was his demonstration of the uses of a gas mask. Soldiers in the field were allowed just six seconds to put their masks on while in battle but the Baltimore Sun reported Barton placed his on his face in just three seconds.

Barton's speech was inspiring especially when he pointed to the service flag with 150 stars – each star signifying a BL boy fighting in the War in Europe. After his talk Barton presented the Alumni Cup for "leadership based on character" to Augustus S. Duffy '18.

John R. Bland, President of Baltimore's USF&G Insurance Company, gave the keynote address to the Class of 1918.

75 Years Ago

Boys' Latin School's athletes were honored at the final athletic assembly of the year. The awards were presented by James A. Criss '39, student president of the Athletic Council. A special award was given to Jack Williams '38 for winning 10 major varsity letters during four years of competition.

Bill Van Horn '38, Rodney Brooks '39, Jim Criss '39, George Riepe '40, and Howdy Marshall '39 were elected to the Varsity Club, an honorary athletic group. A member of the Varsity Club needed three letters to meet eligibility requirements.

A bronze lacrosse shield, an annual award to the varsity lacrosse captain presented by the Class of 1931 was awarded to Jack Williams '38. Bob Stockbridge '39 received a miniature gold lacrosse stick, which was awarded to the member of the varsity squad who did the most to create team spirit. J. Calvin Carney '39 received the miniature stick for team spirit on the junior varsity team. Van Horn and Williams received the gold BL charm which was awarded to seniors of the Varsity Club who participated in three major sports.

70 Years Ago

BL's George Riepe '40, now attending Johns Hopkins University, was named first team lacrosse All-American at defense (first defense position). George was also named by the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association as the winner of the William C. Schmeisser Award (Defenseman of the Year.)

Bob Stockbridge '39 was named to the second all-American team on attack. Bob was playing for the University of Maryland.

Olin Ellis '40 was named Honorable Mention as a midfielder for Johns Hopkins University.

25 Years Ago

BL's Badminton team played a rigorous schedule in the winter/spring of 1988 although Laker archives are not able to produce any documentation on scores or opponents. It is believed to be BL's first badminton team.

5 Years Ago

The Baltimore Sun named Patrick Hohman '08 as the male golf Player of the Year. Patrick, a four year starter for Coach Mason Champion, won the MIAA individual golf championship in 2008.

The MIAA announced its all-B Conference baseball team. Josh Winter '08, Reese Hale '08, Austin Knight '08, and Devon Jerrard '08 were all named to the all-conference team. Austin also was named to participate as a member of the North squad in the annual Brooks Robinson All-star game of Maryland (formerly the Crown All-Star game) at Oriole Park at Camden Yards.

Charlie McComas '08 was named to the second All-Metro lacrosse team by the Baltimore Sun.
